

Park planted pink with cut-outs

Local residents Cad Tyrnil (left) and Jazz Tyrnil-Smart are encouraging residents to come along to Upper Moora Park on Sunday October 21 at 11am and help to 'Plant the Park Pink' and create a Mini-Field of Women in support of National Breast Cancer Awareness month. Organiser Jazz Tyrnil-Smart said the event had been inspired by family friend Veronica Macaulay-Cross. "Veronica lost her battle with secondary breast cancer earlier this year and we thought the best way to honour her memory was to keep raising awareness by supporting and remembering friends and family with breast cancer." Attendees will be encouraged to leave a message of support by sponsoring a silhouette. All money raised will be donated to the Breast Cancer Network Australia.

(LEFT) Staff at the Masonic Care Nursing Home in Sandgate held a Pink Ribbon morning tea recently to raise money for the National Breast Cancer Foundation. Registered nurse Kimberley Reed said they felt it was a very important cause to celebrate. "We invited staff to wear pink and everyone brought a plate of pink food to share and a staff member donated a pink quilt to be raffled off." Ms Reed said the home would raise in excess of $500 for NBCF. Staff in 'pink' mode are: Cassie Cordeaux, Kimberley Reed, Lyn Jurkiewicz, Phyllis Ommensen, Sheree Robinson, Maudy Schriver, Ros Fernandez.
