Mombasa Safari

The Kenya coast comprises of five regions, namely the city of Mombasa, the North Coast, the South Cost, Malindi and Lamu, each with unique features and tourist attractions. The region has a very rich history dating back over one thousand years, epitomized by the Vasco da Gama Pillar and Fort Jesus. The Coast also has very diverse culture that has been influenced by a mixture of Swahili culture, Portuguese Culture and European Cultures from Italy,

Germany, France and England. It has a very rich diversity of attractions ranging from the friendly people, white sandy beaches, coral reefs teeming with underwater marine wonders, bird-life, national parks with a wide variety of animals, fantastic costal food and drink, and water sports.

Within Mombasa Island there is a number of interesting tourist attractions. The Tusks on Moi Avenue commemorate the visit of Queen Elizabeth II to the town in 1952 and make a lovely backdrop for photographs. Close by is the Mombasa Old Town with its interesting architecture, art and curios. A walk through its narrow winding streets takes you back centuries.

Fort Jesus is the island's premier lure, built by the Portuguese in 1593 and overlooking the Indian Ocean. It was designed by an Italian architect named Jao Batisto Cairato and has been variously occupied by the Portuguese and Omani Arabs before the Kenya Government first used it as a prison soon after independence. In 1962, the Government opened Fort Jesus as a museum after declaring it a historical monument. The museum exhibits the culture of the coastal people and archaeological and historical excavations from the coast. The Makupa Market off Mwembe Tayari is Mombasa's biggest market, a colourful place featuring a wide range of produce.
