

Camp for Climate Action: Christian Nonviolent Action Workshops

These workshops will introduce participants to the rationale and goals of the Camp for Climate Action, taking place in Newcastle from 10-15 July. They will also provide a space to consider the roots and principles of nonviolence in the Christian tradition, including some exercises to help prepare for nonviolent direct action at the camp, as part of a Christian affinity group (or action team). A lot more training will be provided at the camp for those new to nonviolent direct action.

The workshops are hosted by Pace e Bene Australia and Project Green Church, and are free.

Attendance is not necessary before the camp, but if you are new to direct action you will find it a good way to get introduced. It will also be a chance to meet other participants and begin forming one or more affinity groups for the action on the Sunday of the camp.

People are also welcome to come even if you cannot attend the camp, but want to learn more about these issues.
