

Dear Anthony

I received your letter and disks. Thank you. I will try and make a long story short. I am not good on the computer. Last year my computer had a virus and the service technician, after working on it for an hour or so, said the only thing left to do to remove the virus would be to "wipe clean" it. Which she did. Afterwards I discovered that all the documents I had on the computer had been removed.

At present I have about 10 or 12 of the last writings on disk. . . . as soon as my computer operator is available I will have him put the letters on the disk you sent. I know this isn't a lot of help but it should cut back on time.

Feel free to use the "little letters" as you see fit as long as no money or offerings are connected with them. These letters contain some of my most private and intimate relationships with God. . . . they are as, it were, my footprints on the pathway to my journey into God and the profound vision and revelation of God's vast family of sons. I freely share them with those who request them. And God is given all the glory; for He has provided their increase.

And, dear brother Anthony, we shall sit out talk together as we once did in the long ago. Carl R. Schuring
